

52. What is Uddin most probably studying in the follow-up research?
- Which languages help children's thinking skills best.
 - How bilingual children interact with others at school.
 - Why autistic children have trouble controlling their actions.
 - How bilingualism changes brain development in autistic children.
53. Which of the following would be the best title for the passage?
- New Research on Autism at School
 - The Challenges for Autistic Children
 - The Benefits of Speaking Two Languages
 - Explanation for Bilingual Communication

第四部分 书面表达 (共20分)

七、阅读与表达 (共10分, 第54-56题各2分, 第57题4分)

阅读短文, 根据短文内容回答问题。

Be Your Own Best Friend

When you make a mistake or say something wrong, it's easy to be hard on yourself. But with self-compassion (自我关怀), you can be a friend to yourself.

Compassion means caring about someone who is sad or in pain. Self-compassion is giving yourself that same care and kindness. When you mess up or when you're trying hard to do something new, being kind to yourself can help. Dr. Kristin Neff, an expert (专家) on this topic, says self-compassion has three parts: being kind to yourself, understanding that everyone has hard times and noticing your feelings.

Self-compassion can lower stress, help you stay strong and make you feel better. When you're kind to yourself, you can think more clearly and see a way forward. Psychologist (心理学家) Suzy Reading says self-compassion helps you be your own best friend and feel at peace.

There are many ways to be kind to yourself.

Talk to yourself using kind words. Notice the words you use. It's helpful to try calling yourself a kind name, like "my dear" or "buddy" because this can help you speak gently to yourself.

Name the feelings you're experiencing. When you feel upset, you might feel angry, disappointed, sad or anxious. At this point, you need to name the feeling and tell yourself it's OK you feel this way.

Take care of your body. You can give yourself a hug, go for a walk, take a few slow and deep breaths or draw a picture.

Try a "gentle touch". You can hold your own hand for comfort; place your hands on your heart to feel calm; rest your chin (下巴) in your hands to relax. Say kind words to yourself while doing these things.

Remember, be kind to yourself, and always do your best—that's enough.

54. What is compassion?
55. According to Suzy Reading, how does self-compassion help you?
56. Why is it helpful to try calling yourself a kind name?
57. Which of the ways do you prefer to practice self-compassion? How?

八、文段表达 (10分)

58. 从下面两个题目中任选一题, 根据中文和英文提示, 完成一篇不少于50词的英语文段写作。文中已给出内容不计入总词数。所给提示词语仅供选用。请不要写出你的真实校名和姓名。

题目①